To Whom It May Concern:

I gladly submit the following Letter of Reference on behalf of Samara C. Kezele Fritchman. As a clinical social worker in private practice, I actively seek out guidance from those in the field that demonstrate the ability to hone and practice their profession with ethics and grace. Samara was the presenter at a "required" Ethics seminar for my social work license renewal. I have since taken other courses and far exceeded the required CEUs for this topic. There was a palpable difference between getting the information I needed at the other seminars and learning to respect and internalize the information provided by Samara.

Samara was a unique and highly engaging presenter, especially for the potentially dry subject of ethics. Personally, I found her enlightening in the fact that she didn't just say, "Do this or else you'll lose your license." She had the passion and dedication to say, "This is the way you should conduct yourself for the best interests of all involved parties, especially your clients." I told her that I had found a renewed sense of hope in the mental health profession knowing that there were knowledgeable and entertaining practitioners out there that still believed in doing the right thing and had the ability to encourage their colleagues and students to do the same.

I would strongly recommend her for any endeavor she wishes to pursue. I believe you will find that her years of experience and depth of insight will go a long way in helping you and your business achieve lasting success. Should you need any additional information please do not hesitate to call me directly at my home office number (248) 414-3692.

Respectfully Submitted,
